

IntelliChem in the time of Covid-19

IntelliChem and its group of companies are committed to continue the supply of products and solutions to its customers during the lockdown period.

Over the last couple of weeks we have made the necessary contingency plans in anticipation of stricter regulations. We have been in close contact with our suppliers to ensure that we have sufficient products. It is also encouraging that the Chinese suppliers have recommenced with their activities which should result in the stabilization of supply over the coming weeks. Some delays can still be expected due to backlogs, but we are monitoring the situation closely.

Even though suppliers of agricultural inputs are listed as essential businesses, we still want to respect the protocols of the lockdown and limit the movement of our people as far as possible. In light of this we have implemented work-from-home arrangements for all office support and administrative staff.

Furthermore, we are limiting the functioning of operational and logistic staff with the contingency plans mentioned above.

We request that we limit physical visits by our Crop Solution Specialists and Technical Marketing Specialists as far as possible. Should a physical visit be required please adhere to guidelines of personal hygiene and maintain distances between individuals. Let us be practical and innovative with physical visits by sharing location pins where inspections must be done and limiting the attendees of such inspections. Please use telephone and other electronic communication as far as possible.

We trust that the cooperation of all South Africans during the lockdown period will have the desired outcome and that the people of our country will benefit from these measures.
